1	Hundreds of thousands of persons each year suffer from some type of cancer, and new methods of radiation therapy have enabled doctors to save more lives than ever before. Medical researchers have developed several experimental forms of this honored cancer treatment that seem effective in fighting the disease.
5	One promising approach involves exposing cancer cells radiation by implanting a radioactive source directly into the malignant tissue. This process greatly increases the dosage and thus the effectiveness of the treatment. Another technique utilizes drugs to make cancer cells more susceptible to the effects of radiation and to make cancer cells more resistant. Certain drugs are able to neutralize the generic framework of cancer cells, thus making them more easily affected by radiation. Both techniques have seen some positive results in the treatment of inoperable brain tumors.
15	These and other methods have helped to raise the recovery rate for cancer victims from 30 percent 40 years ago to around 50 percent today. This is encouraging news for those who fall prey to one of the world’s leading killers.
